WATERFRONT NOTES

THE CANADIAN-AUSTRALIAN steamship Moana surprised everyone by arriving here a day ahead of her schedule, for she arrived outside the harbor shortly after 6 o'clock last night.

She brought back from Victoria the Japanese crew of the cable ship Restorer and a large list of passengers for Honolulu. She had 2000 barrels of lime, 230 cases of fish, and 200 cases of sundries for this port.

Her first sailing date was announced as 19 o'clock this morning, but on account of the breaking of a steam-pipe which had to be repaired at the Honolulu Iron Works, the time was changed to an hour later.

She has on board B. Kilhamster, who is on his way to Newcastle, New South Wales, to take the position of American Consul there.

THAT FILIPINOS are not liked for shipmates was exemplified this morning when Shipping Commissioner Almy was signing on the crew for the Edward Sewall. There was a large number of men hanging around the "front" this morning, but they backed up when they heard that the Sewall was taking on a Filipino crew.

The fact of the matter was that there were only two or three colored men taken aboard, but the most of the white sailors didn't care much whether they signed or not, on account of the fact that the Sewall is a deep water vessel. They would rather ship coal and draw their $40 per. The full crew will probably be secured this afternoon. Nine men were signed this morning.

ALL INTEREST in the waterfront today turned to the launching of the yacht Hawaii at 6 o'clock. A record-breaking crowd will probably be in attendance.

THE ARMY TURNER has taken on all the sugar bread in the Mauna Kea. She will get away in about a week, if she has good luck with her cargo.

THE MAUNA KEA made the trip from Lahaina last night in the remarkable time of 5 hours and 40 minutes.

NEED DOUBLE FORCE IF IWILEI CLOSES

Will Enforce Law If Action Is Taken, Everywhere

"Mr. Thwing called upon me this morning to press the petition for the closing of Iwilei," said Sheriff Iaukea this forenoon. "But I have not made a decision about the matter yet. I told him that the Grand Jury had taken up the matter, and that whatever action it took would to a great extent govern my decision, taking it as an expression of public opinion. However, no matter what it recommends, I believe that the public at large is against the closing of Iwilei, regarding it as the lesser of two evils."

"One thing I will say, and that is that if the law is strictly enforced it will be enforced without regard to persons and at all places, hit where it may, that is if we are able to do so, it is certain that if it is to be enforced these gentlemen want it done, we will need to double our police force, and I feel certain that if Iwilei is closed at the time the fleet comes here we will have much more difficulty in handling the situation."

"If it is decided to close Iwilei, Honolulu will have such an enforcement of the law as it never had before," said Chief of Detectives Taylor. "We shall enforce it at all places where it is being violated, be it private houses, hotels or other places. We shall be no respecters of persons, and the owner of a house where such things are going on shall not get immunity, no matter who he is."

Taylor points out that the leaders of the movement are very inconsistent, to say the least. For instance Mr. Thwing, who has been protesting against Iwilei as a stench in the nostrils of all good men, came to Taylor with his kick some days ago.

"Why didn't you complain when Iaukea's administration began?" asked Taylor. "The place was running then just as it is now, and has been running ever since."

"But I did not know about it until about a week ago," answered Thwing. "When Mr. Rath told me, I thought that the place had been closed up a long time ago."

Taylor points out that the place can not be such a very great danger to the public morals when Mr. Thwing, who is a self-constituted guardian of such, was in ignorance of its existence for over a year and then only found out about it through a fellow worker.

That Sheriff Iaukea's view that the greater part of the responsible public is against the strict enforcement of the law is correct was shown by the sentiments expressed by some of the recognized leaders of the local commercial bodies. They expressed the opinion that the papers should cut out all matters pertaining to the Thwing agitation.

"Well, if no opposition is allowed to express itself, and Iwilei is closed up as a consequence, what will happen when the fleet comes here?" they were asked.

By an odd coincidence the answer was the same in each case: "Then our wives and daughters will not be safe on the street."

H. P. BALDWIN WRITES

by corporations and others from Ulukoula to Hana that will produce profitably all the above products, and that will be opened up for small farmers when the right time comes.

These tracts of land are not suitable for raising cane profitably, both on account of soil and rainfall, but are suitable for pineapples and other farming products. Cane requires from 75 to 80 inches rain per annum, fairly well distributed through the year, and we are not sure of that amount of rain in that region; where pineapples, and other farming products mentioned, will do very well if the rainfall is from 35 to 40 inches per annum. All the land to the east of us, above say 200 to 500 feet elevation, is sure of that amount of rain. To homestead these lands does not interfere with the cane business, but is a benefit, as homestead colonies furnish labor.

I have always strongly favored dividing up lands suitable for farming purposes for "bona fide" citizen settlers, and for those eligible to become citizens, but in my opinion it would be unwise to do so to any extent before good roads, or railroads, are constructed to the country it is proposed to open up, and good farmers have every facility for marketing their products, and at reasonable cost.

Again, it is unwise to cut up land for small farmers to raise certain products before it has been reasonably demonstrated what can be successfully and profitably raised. It is not paid to the above points in cutting up lands for settlers, the farmers are quite likely to find their farms unprofitable, throw them up, and the object of the Government to establish citizen settlers is thus defeated, and the lands pass into the hands of Corporations or to others who are not citizens. This has been the case in more than one instance where the Government has prematurely cut up lands for settlers. In such instances it would have been better if the lands had been leased for a reasonable time, rather than have them pass out of the Government's control altogether.

I have no doubt the Government will open up the Government lands between here and Hailu and beyond, as soon as it is demonstrated what can be raised profitably, and the facilities for marketing the farm products are perfected.

For the above reasons there may be some delay in cutting up lands for homesteaders at and adjoining Keane, and along the slope this side of Keane, owned by the Government and other parties.

Now in regard to the proposed exchange of Hailu land for the Government Opaolo land, from which the Government has never obtained a cent of revenue. The Hailu land is the best of pineapple land, and the pineapple industry has got beyond the experimental stage and is proving a profitable business. We are so well satisfied that this industry will grow to be a large business in that region that the Kahului Railroad Company will soon extend its road across the deep Hailu gulch to the pineapple cannery and tap the farming land beyond.

We have already leased and sold portions of the Hailu Sugar Company's pineapple lands to American citizens, and have proposed to lease other portions to "bona fide" settlers. We wish to establish a prosperous colony in that region of citizen farmers who mean business.

I wish to say a word in regard to the "Baldwin" who Mr. Irwin said in his article objected to furnishing land to a Portuguese who applied for land, on the ground that the Portuguese would steal away his Japs. I presume the "Baldwin" referred to is the Manager of the Maui Agricultural Company, although I have not enquired of him in regard to the matter. I would like to say this, that the Maui Agricultural Company's Manager employs a larger proportion of citizen labor, and men eligible to be citizens, than any other plantation on the islands.

I remain,
Yours very truly,
H. P. BALDWIN.
Puunene, Maui, April 3.
